Introducing a new book series from Edinburgh University Press

Cycles
Series Editors:
Andrew LaZella & Richard A. Lee

New critical perspectives on the history of philosophy, from Ancient Greece to the 19th-century

The Cycles series shows how the history of philosophy is a living tradition, influencing and determining our thinking in the present while maintaining its deep and rich roots in the past. It expands the scope of what constitutes traditional history of Western philosophy. Books in the series will adopt alternative, critical methodological approaches – hermeneutic, feminist, deconstructive, critical-theoretic, post-colonial and phenomenological.

- Includes Ancient, Medieval, Renaissance, Early Modern and 19th century philosophy
- Employs a critical methodology as opposed to standard analytical or historicist approaches
- Provides a significant, ongoing, and critically acclaimed home for scholars working with new approaches and methods to the history of philosophy
- Opens the canon to include figures and texts that are not part of the currently accepted history of philosophy
- Brings the history of philosophy into conversation with contemporary continental philosophy

Find out more on the Edinburgh University Press website: https://edinburghuniversitypress.com/series-cycles.html

EDINBURGH
University Press
Submission guidelines
Please refer to our website for further information on style and presentation of articles, at:
http://www.euppublishing.com/page/anph/submissions

Open Access
Edinburgh University Press supports ‘Green’ Open Access (Open Access Archiving) for all EUP journals, and offers optional ‘Gold’ Open Access via Edinburgh Open. Our full policy can be found on our website at: http://www.euppublishing.com/customer-services/authors/open-access

Proofs
Proofs of all articles will be sent to authors for correction from Edinburgh University Press. Authors must return corrected proofs to the Ancient Philosophy Today: DIALOGOI editors.

E-prints
Authors will receive a print PDF of their paper upon publication and a 30-day access token to the journal online. Contributors can also purchase the issue in which their paper is published at a 40% discount, or order traditional offprints.

Copyright
It is a condition of publication in the journal that authors assign copyright of their articles to Edinburgh University Press. This ensures efficient and consistent handling of requests from third parties to reproduce articles, and it will also allow the article to be disseminated to as wide a readership as possible. In assigning copyright, authors retain their right to use their own material elsewhere, provided that the journal is acknowledged as the original place of publication, and Edinburgh University Press is notified in writing in advance. Further information on copyright policy is available by contacting journals@eup.ed.ac.uk

Permissions
Information on how to request permission to use material from this journal is available at http://www.euppublishing.com/customer-services/authors/permissions

Disclaimer
Statements of fact and opinion in the articles in Ancient Philosophy Today: DIALOGOI are those of the respective authors and contributors and not of the editors or Edinburgh University Press. Neither Edinburgh University Press nor the editors make any representation, express or implied, in respect of the accuracy of the material in this journal and cannot accept any legal responsibility or liability for any errors or omissions that may be made.
ARTICLES

The Real Challenge of Plato’s Republic 149
Russell E. Jones

When Protagoras made Aristotle his Fitch 171
Ian McCready-Flora

Aristotle for the Modern Ethicist 192
Sophia Connell

Hylomorphic Offices 215
Christopher Shields

Two Dogmas of (Modern) Aristotle Scholarship 237
Tom Angier

BOOK REVIEWS

Christian Pfeiffer, Aristotle’s Theory of Bodies, reviewed by Chiara Martini 256

Katja Maria Vogt, Desiring the Good: Ancient Proposals and Contemporary Theory, reviewed by Udit Bery 263