Analysing Syntax through Texts
Old, Middle, and Early Modern English
Elly van Gelderen

- Examines texts from a variety of genres including poetry, prose, romance and sermon
- Features word by word transcriptions and translations
- References key copora of English texts
- Includes a glossary, exercises and suggestions for further reading
- Appendices contain grammatical information and textual background

December 2017
Pb 9781474420389 / £24.99

Edinburgh Historical Linguistics
Series Editor: Joseph Salmons and David Willis
A series of advanced textbooks which cover key subfields within historical linguistics

Language & Linguistics

EDINBURGH University Press
www.edinburghuniversitypress.com
Guidance to authors
Submitting your contribution to Corpora

The editors are pleased to consider manuscripts for publication in Corpora providing the manuscript has not already been published elsewhere and/or is not being considered for publication elsewhere. We wish to be informed if the work has been made public in another form or language. Papers which contribute to corpus-based theory or methodology (e.g., building, annotation, tools, analysis, etc.) will be given precedence over those which access a corpus in order to study some aspect of linguistics. The copyright of papers accepted for publication remains with the author. The editors reserve the right to make editorial revisions, but will not make major changes without the author’s approval. Contributors are asked to follow the guidelines set out below.

Guidelines

Manuscripts should be submitted by e-mail, or on disc: paper versions are not normally required. The electronic file(s) should be doc, rtf or equivalent format rather than tex or pdf. All editorial correspondence, including article submissions (except book reviews), should be sent to: Professor Paul Baker, Department of Linguistics and English Language, Lancaster University, Bailrigg, Lancaster, LA1 4YT, UK, e-mail: j.p.baker@lancaster.ac.uk. Books for review should be sent to: Dr Randi Reppen, Dept. of English, Box 6032, Northern Arizona University, Flagstaff, AZ 86011-6032, USA, e-mail: randi.reppen@nau.edu.

Length. Economy of expression is essential. Long papers, i.e. research papers reporting on completed corpus-based research, should be 6,000 to 10,000 words in length (that includes references and Appendices). The number of figures and tables should be carefully considered. Short papers, i.e. research papers reporting on corpus construction, the development and application of an annotation scheme, the development of automated annotation systems, etc., should be 2,500 to 4,000 words in length. Book reviews should not exceed 1,500 words. Book reviews do not require an abstract. All other submissions should include an abstract that is 150 to 200 words long.

Presentation

Please submit your paper in Times New Roman type (or similar), at twelve points. All section headings should be in boldface and numbered (please avoid automatic formatting features in your word processing package). Use single quotation marks for main quotations, and double marks for any included within the main quotation. Quotations of more than forty words should be indented. Foreign words (except proper names) should be italicised. Dates should be given as 23 July 1945, the 1940s, 1952–56; numerals up to ninety-nine should be given in words (e.g., eighty-seven, sixty-nine), but all other numbers given in figures, i.e., 14–18 percent; initials of institutions or countries should be given without stops, e.g., TANU, INLCO, UK.

Orthography of languages. Citations from languages should, where possible, follow the currently established orthography in the country or one of the countries in which the language is a recognised majority or minority language. In the absence of an established orthography, recognised symbols must be used, e.g., the IPA or a documented romanised transliteration scheme.

Footnotes and references. Provide footnotes rather than endnotes. Keep your footnotes short and relevant, and include web addresses in footnotes wherever possible. References to publications should be placed in the text, in parentheses, and a bibliography provided at the end of the submission. References in the text should be in the form (Forde, 1964: 102), whilst references in the bibliography should appear as follows:

for books

for articles

for papers in books

Tables, maps, diagrams and figures. These should be placed at the end of the article, each on a separate page and numbered. The number should also be marked in the main text where the author wishes the item to appear. They should be clearly drawn so that they are suitable for photocopying as submitted, and sources must be duly acknowledged.

Proofs. Authors will be sent proofs.

Copyright permission. It is the responsibility of the author to obtain permission to reproduce any previously published material.

Contributor copies. Authors will receive an electronic copy of their article, sent by the publisher.

Journal acceptance rate. By 5 May 2017, Corpora had received 314 submissions. There were 156 rejections, 144 acceptances and 14 pending decisions.
Contents

Representations of immigrants and refugees in US K-12 school-to-home correspondence: an exploratory corpus-assisted discourse study
Cynthia Berger, Eric Friginal and Jennifer Roberts

Explaining the orthography–phonology interface in written corpora: an Optimality–Theoretic approach
Yasemin Yildiz

Patterns of verbal agreement with collective nouns taking plural of-dependents: a corpus-based analysis of syntactic distance
Yolanda Fernández-Pena

‘What is this corpus about?': using topic modelling to explore a specialised corpus
Akira Murakami, Paul Thompson, Susan Hunston and Dominik Vajn

Keywords, semantic domains and intercultural competence in the British and Taiwanese Teenage Intercultural Communication Corpus
Yen-Liang (Eric) Lin

Ge Lan