The International African Institute (IAI) was founded in 1926 in London and has published its renowned journal Africa since 1928. The IAI promotes the scholarly study of Africa’s history, societies and cultures and realises its aims primarily by means of scholarly publishing. Africa is known as the world’s leading journal on local-level culture and social change in Africa.

Edinburgh University Press, in association with the IAI, also publishes the International African Library, a major vehicle for making available some of the most important original scholarship on Africa in the fields of anthropology, sociology, politics and history.

JOURNAL

Africa

Journal of the International African Institute

Editor: Professor Karin Barber, University of Birmingham

Africa, the premier journal devoted to the study of African societies and culture, remains the main UK-based, international journal publishing on the whole of Africa, and in all disciplines of the humanities, social sciences and environmental studies, while retaining its historic core orientation to ethnographically rich, historically informed knowledge of life on the ground in Africa.

Africa aims to give increased attention to African production of knowledge, highlighting the work of local African thinkers and writers, emerging social and cultural trends ‘on the ground’, and links between local and national levels of society. At the same time, it maintains its commitment to the theoretically informed analysis of the realities of Africa’s own cultural categories. Each issue contains five or six major articles, arranged thematically, extensive review essays and substantial book reviews.

Local African Intellectuals Strand

Africa features a thematic strand highlighting the work of local African thinkers and writers, especially those who are not part of the mainstream academic or political life and whose work is often unpublished, or published in obscure or ephemeral outlets.

African Countries Initiative

Africa is available free of charge, in electronic format, to libraries and non-profit research and educational institutions in Africa. By opening the journal up to institutions in Africa, the Institute is fulfilling its historic mission and highest priority to promote access to African research and publication internationally.

Knowledge in Practice
Expertise and the Transmission of Knowledge
Africa Volume 79 Issue 1
Guest Editors: Kai Kresse & Trevor H. J. Marchand

This collection illustrates the exercise of ‘expertise’, and explores the criteria by which expert knowledge is judged and the social processes of its validation. Grounded in ethnographic fieldwork among builders, healers, diviners, poets and Islamic scholars, the articles reflect upon the words and deeds of skilled practitioners as they are enounced and enacted in the realm of ritual and the sacred, as well as in the schedule of everyday life and work. Set within local networks and the wider context of national agendas and global economies, a multiplicity of channels for the constitution of knowledge and the negotiation of expertise are explored.

Obafemi Awolowo and the Making of Remo

Insa Nolte, University of Birmingham

Insa Nolte examines the evolution of a distinctive Yoruba community, Remo, and the central role played in this process by the Remo-born Nationalist and Yoruba leader Obafemi Awolowo (1909-87). Since the Nineteenth Century, popular participation has played an important role in challenging or confirming local hierarchies in Remo. This historical dynamic had a significant impact on Awolowo’s vision both for Yoruba and Nigerian politics. When he moved into national politics in the 1950s, his career at the national level also gave him the opportunity to shape Remo’s political identity. Awolowo was both a product and a producer of Remo politics.

Based on a subtle analysis of local-level politics, this book argues that traditional and modern participatory structures play an important role both in Yoruba politics and in the African postcolonial state. Nolte makes an important contribution to the scholarly debate on one of Nigeria’s most important politicians.

Beyond the State in Rural Uganda

Ben Jones, University of East Anglia

‘… a new anthropological perspective on how to think about processes of social and political change in poorer parts of the world, appealing to anyone interested in African development.’
- Society Now

In this innovative study, Ben Jones argues that scholars too often assume that the state is the most important force behind change in local political communities in Africa. Studies look to the state, and to the impact of government reforms, as ways of understanding processes of development and change. Using the example of Uganda, regarded as one of Africa’s few ‘success stories’, Jones chronicles the insignificance of the state and the marginal impact of Western development agencies. Groundbreaking and critical in turn, Beyond the State offers a new anthropological perspective on how to think about processes of social and political change in poorer parts of the world. It should appeal to anyone interested in African development.

Key Features
• Offers a new approach to studying development and change
• Looks at problems of international development assistance
• Provides a rich ethnographic rural study from east Africa

The Politics of Religious Change on the Upper Guinea Coast

Iconoclasm Done and Undone

Ramon Sarró, University of Lisbon

Based on research spanning over 12 years, this book offers an in-depth analysis of an iconoclastic religious movement initiated by a Muslim preacher among coastal Baga farmers in the French colonial period. With an ethnographic approach that listens as carefully to those who suffered iconoclastic violence as to those who wanted to ‘get rid of custom’, Sarró discusses the extent to which iconoclasm produces a rupture of religious knowledge and identity, and analyses its relevance in the making of modern nations and citizens. This book will appeal to those with an interest in the anthropology of religion, iconoclasm, the history and anthropology of west Africa, or the politics of heritage.

Key Features

• Examines the historical complexity of the interface between Islam, traditional religions and Christianity in west Africa, and the links with dramatic political changes
• Offers a detailed ethnographic approach
• Presents a dialogue between the field findings, a long tradition of anthropology and the most recent anthropological debates

Art, Performance and Ritual in Benin City

Iconoclasm Done and Undone

Charles Gore, School of Oriental and African Studies

This book explores the roles of contemporary urban shrines and their visual traditions in Benin City focusing on the charismatic priests and priestesses who are possessed by a pantheon of deities, the communities of devotees, and the artists who make artifacts for their shrines. The visual arts are part of a wider configuration of practices that include song, dance, possession and healing. These practices provide the means for exploring the relationships of the visual to both the verbal and performance arts that feature at these shrines. Charles Gore raises fundamental questions about how the art of Benin, and non-Western art histories more generally, are understood and presents an original and revisionist account of Benin art history.

Masquerades of Modernity
Power and Secrecy in Casamance, Senegal

Ferdinand De Jong, University of East Anglia

How do those on the margins of modernity face the challenges of globalization? This book demonstrates that secrecy, performed as a weapon of the weak, empowers their performers and serves to mark boundaries and define the local in the global. Focusing on initiation rituals, masked performances and modern art, de Jong shows that rituals and performances long deemed obsolete, serve the insertion of their performers in the world at their own terms. The people of the Casamance region in Senegal have always used their rituals and performances to incorporate the impact of Islam, colonialism, capitalism and contemporary politics and continue to do so today. This book will interest anthropologists, historians, political scientists and all those studying how globalisation affects peripheral societies.

Philosophising in Mombasa
Knowledge, Islam and Intellectual Practice on the Swahili Coast
Kai Kresse, University of St Andrews
Honorable Mention, Herskovits Book Award 2008

This book provides an approach to the anthropological study of philosophical discourses in the Swahili context of Mombasa, Kenya. In this historically established Muslim environment, philosophy is investigated as social discourse and intellectual practice, situated in everyday life. Two poets and an Islamic scholar are portrayed against the background of regional intellectual history, Islamic scholarship, as well as common public debates and private discussions. These contextual portrayals discuss exemplary issues for the wider field of research on philosophical discourse in Mombasa and the Swahili context on the whole, with reference to the lives and projects of distinct individual thinkers. Ultimately, the study directs attention beyond the regional and the African contexts, towards the study of knowledge and intellectual practice around the world.

The Man-Leopard Murders
History and Society in Colonial Nigeria
David Pratten, University of Oxford
Winner, Amaury Talbot Prize (RAI) 2008

This book is an account of murder and politics in Africa, and a historical ethnography of southern Annang communities during the colonial period. Its narrative leads to events between 1945 and 1948 when the imperial gaze of police, press and politicians was focused on a series of mysterious deaths in south-eastern Nigeria attributed to the ‘man-leopard society’. These murder mysteries, reported as the ‘biggest, strangest murder hunt in the world’, were not just forensic but also related to the broad historical impact of commercial, Christian and colonial aid relations on Annang society.

SERIES
International African Seminars

The International African Seminars and the volumes based on them have long been regarded as one of the International African Institute’s most important contributions to African Studies. The seminars bring Africanist specialists together from inside and outside the continent to debate particular topics in Africa, ranging from indigenous African systems of thought and Islam in sub-Saharan Africa to urbanisation and trade and the formation of elites.

Media and Identity in Africa
Edited by John F. M. Middleton & Kimani Njogu, Kenyatta University, Kenya

Studies of the media in Africa, incorporating both African and international perspectives, are few. This book demonstrates how media outlets are used to perpetuate, question or modify the unequal power relations between the North and the South. Focusing on east Africa, topics include discussions of the construction of old and new social entities, as defined by class, gender, ethnicity, political and economic differences, wealth, poverty, cultural behaviour, language and religion. Globalization is being countered by local responses, within the context of social and cultural identities. Essentially, the book describes the tensions between the global and the local, tensions not often discussed in media studies, thus pioneering new debates.

Transforming Settlement in Southern Africa
Edited by Chris de Wet & Roddy Fox

This volume examines the ways in which changing political and economic processes impact upon patterns of population movement and settlement. It focuses on the southern African region as it has moved from the experiments of the early independence era, through civil war and refugee flight, into the current era characterised by globalization and the demise of apartheid. Focused case studies from across the region deal with specific aspects of these transformations and their policy implications.

This volume introduces students and scholars to the large and rich area of inquiry and scholarship known as African American Studies (also called Black Studies, Africana Studies, and Pan African Studies). Students are presented with foundational content in the discipline; a focus on social activism and community service as inextricably linked to African American Studies; an understanding of related global perspectives; selected areas of creative narratives and production in the discipline; and a look to the future of the discipline. A common thread running throughout each chapter of the text is a focus on the application of knowledge from African American Studies via advocacy and community service.

Introducing Ethnic Studies
A Historical Companion to Postcolonial Literatures in English
Edited by Prem Podder, University of Southampton & David Johnson, the Open University

The focus of the Companion is principally on the histories of postcolonial literatures in the Anglophone world – Africa, the Middle East, South Asia, South-east Asia, Australia and New Zealand, the Pacific, the Caribbean and Canada, as well as those further areas that have also claimed the title ‘postcolonial’, notably Britain, East Asia, Ireland, Latin America and the United States. The Companion contains 220 entries written by 150 acknowledged scholars of postcolonial history and literature, and covers major events, ideas, movements, and figures in postcolonial histories.

A Historical Companion to Postcolonial Literatures - Continental Europe and its Empires
Edited by Prem Poddar, University of Southampton, Rajeev Patke, National University of Singapore & Lars Jensen, Roskilde University

‘The Companion is unique in that it provides a wealth of analysis and information about all European continental powers and their colonies and presents the entire assembly in a wonderful mis-en-scène. It is a ‘true’ companion that invites trans-cultural readings of trans-cultural literatures.’ - Walter Mignolo, Duke University

This is the first reference work to provide an integrated and authoritative body of information about the political, cultural and economic contexts of postcolonial literatures that have their provenance in the major European Empires of Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Italy, The Netherlands, Portugal, Spain, Latin America and the Philippines.

Regional Editors: John Beverley, Charles Forsdick, Pierre-Philippe Fraiture, Ruth Ben-Ghiat, Theo D’haen, Lars Jensen, Birthe Kundrus, Elizabeth Monasterios, Phillip Rothwell
